

A different kind of dog show

By Evelyn Symons Special to the Londoner

Posted 3 days ago

It was easy to spot the dog lovers at this art show.

And not because the lighting was just right, or because of the smiles on those who admired the collection of paintings from 10 different artists. It was because they brought their canines to the gallery with them. And the ARTS Project on Dundas Street was ready with a bowl of dog biscuits on a piano bench.

The "Dog Show", an eclectic look at dogs, ran from March 6 to 10. "It's been a happy crowd," said artist Joanna Gooder. "It's all so different with the 10 of us. Everyone has a different take on things."

Artist Kit Cutting organized the show with each giving a percentage of sales to different rescue organizations.

The artists involved were Donna Andreychuk, Martina Bruggeman, Gwen Card, Ingrid Connidis, Kit Cutting, Lois Fuchs, Joanna Gooder, Gail Jongkind, Virginia Morley, and Bunny Warner

Photo by Evelyn Symons Special to the Londoner Janet Ross and her Labradoodle Stanley attended the last day of the "Dog Show." It was a collection of paintings from 10 artists at the Arts Project on Dundas Street.